Trial traffic changes at Victoria Road and Bowden Street intersection, Ryde starts 9 February 2019

Roads and Maritime Services will trial changes to traffic arrangements at the intersection of Victoria Road and Bowden Street, Ryde.

During the evening of Friday 8 February, we will complete work to install a right turn arrow at the intersection. The new arrow will assist motorists turning right from the southern side of Bowden Street onto Victoria Road eastbound.

To ensure the safety of all road users, right turns from the northern side of Bowden Street into Victoria Road westbound will be banned.

The trial traffic changes will come into effect on Saturday 9 February.

Why are we trialling this change?

Roads and Maritime upgraded the intersection of Victoria Road and Bowden Street last year, improving traffic flow, reducing travel times and making travel safer.

Since upgrading the intersection, we have received feedback from the community about the challenges of turning right from the southern side of Bowden Street onto Victoria Road eastbound. We have established this trial to address this feedback.

This is a six month trial. At the end of the trial, we will review the information collected and consult with the community, before deciding whether to keep this arrangement permanently.

The right turn from Bowden Street to Victoria Road eastbound will now have a green arrow available.

There will be no right turn from Bowden Street to Victoria Road westbound during the trial.
What will change

We are installing a right hand turn arrow to assist turns from Bowden Street onto Victoria Road eastbound (heading towards the CBD)

We are banning right hand turns from Bowden Street onto Victoria Road westbound (heading towards Parramatta).

When

These changes will take place on Friday 8 February.

Alternative routes

Motorists needing to turn right from the northern side of Bowden Street onto Victoria Road have a number of different options, including turning right onto Victoria Road at:
